MAKE THREATS IN TWO CASES

Anonymous Epistle Writers in Milroy Attack Squire Ritche, Warning Him to Behave.

THERE'S A WOMAN IN THE CASE

One Signed "Secretary Good Citizens' League" Written in Feminine Hand—Other Sent by a Man.

Contrary to the current belief here as well as in Milroy, Squire Ben F. Ritche, Milroy's "Judge," has received two anonymous letters in the past two weeks, instead of one which was commonly rumored, each one threatening him harm if he does not change his ways. Squire Ritche declares that he has received the two unsigned epistles but he is not very much worried over the threats. He proposes, however, to prosecute the writers of the letters if he can get the postoffice department to act.

Other people in Milroy believe that the letters are not of such import as to merit so much agitation as has already been created. Many, there are, who say that the town squire has greatly exaggerated the case and that he really has no reason to be alarmed. According to Squire Ritche, the most dire threat made was that "they would send him to Jeffersonville." He also says that they called him a thief and a robber.

The squire is prone to believe that the opening of the pool room in Milroy, the second one to be started in the town, is the sole cause for the unsigned mail. He says that he received the first letter one week ago last Tuesday, one day after he opened his new pool room which was on Monday, November, 21. The next letter came last Monday and was addressed to his wife. It, so Ritche said, is more threatening than the first and predicts dire punishment for him if he does not mend his ways.

The town "Judge" is angered by the cowardly attack and stoutly affirms and reaffirms that he will bring the offenders to justice if that be possible. As soon as he received the first letter one week ago last Tuesday he promptly came to Rushville, where he placed the matter in the hands of a local attorney. That attorney, so the squire says, is laying the matter before the postal authorities, who he hopes will act. He proposes to come to this city in a few days and place the other letter in the hands of the same attorney for his action.

But, Hist, there's a woman in the case. Squire Ritche avers that the last letter mailed to him was written and placed in the postoffice by a woman of Milroy whose name he says he does not know. He says that the contents were written by a feminine hand and that the missive was mailed by a woman. Squire Ritche says that Miss Mary Walker, assistant postmaster, told him that she recalled the time when that letter was mailed, as an incident occurred, which caused her to notice the person who mailed it and that that person was a woman. Miss Walker denies that she had ever told the squire anything of the sort. She says she remembers the morning the letter was mailed, but that she does not recollect who mailed it.

The second letter, purported to be written and mailed by a woman, was addressed to Mrs. Ben F. Ritche, the squire's wife. It was signed "Secretary of the Good Citizens' League." The first letter which the squire believes was written by a man, was signed "Good Citizens." The two signatures leads the town "Judge" to believe that his opening the pool room is the reason for the anonymous let-

TURNED UP AT AN INOPTORTUNE TIME

George Goddard Returns Home Even Before Foul Play Theory Has a Good Start.

LAUGHS AT THE ASSERTION

George Goddard, who, it was said yesterday evening, had disappeared, and whom, it was feared had met with foul play, was back in the city of Rushville long before the rumor was well on its way. Mr. Goddard returned last night from a brief business trip and will be here to attend to his fruit business in the old Sullivan saloon room at the corner of Main and First streets.

When seen this morning Mr. Goddard knocked the foul play theory skyward and said that foul play was farthest from his thoughts. He said that if he had met with any such a fate that he had plenty of articles with him so that he could be easily identified. "I suppose there are plenty of policemen in other cities who can attend to such cases and my people would have been notified immediately isn't that so?" said Mr. Goddard in conclusion.

PROMISES TO HOLD MARATHON RECORD

Damage Suit of Smiley vs. Knecht Still Occupies Boards in Circuit Court.

WILL CONTINUE OVER MONDAY

The case of Delbert Smiley of Falmouth against John Knecht, formerly proprietor of the Auto Inn in this city, but now of Washington township, for two hundred dollars promises to hold the long-distance record for small damage suit trials in the circuit court. The case was begun yesterday morning and still continues. At a late hour this afternoon the State closed and the defense began introducing their evidence. It is thought by attorneys in the case that it will not be finished before Tuesday. Smiley alleges that a machine, which Knecht was driving, caused his horse to frighten, run away and later die. Samuel Trabue of this city and Reuben Conner of Connersville are attorneys for the defendant while Dave McKee and Richard N. Elliott of Connersville are defending the plaintiff.

The zinc production in 1909 was 783,200 tons, of which the United States contributed 240,446 tons; Germany, 220,100 tons and Belgium, 167,100 tons.

FUND IS GIVEN A GOOD START

Publication of the First Contributors Shows Total of $17.40 Has Been Received.

BIG SURPRISE TO MANAGERS

Amount Received in Time For Today's List Exceeds Fonddest Hopes.

Total .....$17.40

With contributions far in excess of what the managers of the Daily Republican Santa Claus fund ever dreamed of, the first publication of the donors' names is made today. The sum, $17.40, is much better than was expected for the first three days, as interest in the undertaking has not yet reached a keen point. Many of the five dollar subscriptions which were received early last year have not yet come in.

Early contributions are urged so that the buying can be done early and the amount and number of presents determined. The little folks who wish to give a portion of their small savings to help make some other little people happy are asked to mail their contributions to Santa Claus as soon as possible.

Word was received by wireless this afternoon from Santa Claus at the north pole. He was more than pleased with the snow but not half so much as he is with the initial progress of the fund to help little children whom he would not otherwise have visited, had it not been for that.

Notably among the subscriptions this year is Ed Heywood, as representative of the Weeks Fresh Meat and Provision company. He was among the early contributors last year and has long since expressed himself as being heartily in favor of the plan. Earl H. Payne, president of the Peoples National bank, was one of the early five-dollar donors last year. Another contributor said that his amount was "only a starter." The penny boxes from which a good sum was made last year will be placed on several prominent corners tonight. Many people dropped their spare change into the boxes last year, the greatest number of coins being pennies.

All of the children who have donated to the cause so far have been those living in the country. Last year many little folks in the city rallied around the Santa Claus fund and supported it nobly. It is expected that many of them will contribute their bit to help the less fortunate little ones next week.

One of the letters in which contribution was sent reads like this:

Arlington, Ind., Dec. 1, 1910.
The Daily Republican Santa Claus Fund:

Dear Sir—Please find enclosed ten cents which I contribute to the Santa fund. Hoping this will help to make some little girl happy on Christmas day

I am very truly yours,
MISS LILLIAN MUNDEN.

HUNTERS KILL HOGS AND A COW

But William Martin, Living in Anderson Township, is Not Certain it Was Accidental.

ONE HOG SHOT DEAD IN PEN

Has Posted His Farm With Signs and Has Perfect Aversion For Hunters Now.

William Martin, living south of Milroy, has posted notices on his farm. There is nothing unusual about that statement, for many farmers are seeing the signs of the times and as a result are placing signs on their farms, notifying hunters that they shall not invade his premises in quest of game. But there's method in the madness of this farmer. He has reason for erecting notices since no less than four of his hogs have been shot and killed in the last few days and a valuable cow was shot so that she was rendered useless.

Mr. Martin naturally has an aversion for hunters. He can not bear the sight of them and he will not permit them on his premises because he believes that it was some of that species that caused the death of his hogs and a cow and caused him a heavy financial loss. Mr. Martin was offered eighty dollars for the cow a few days ago and shortly after that he found that she had been shot in such a place so that she was absolutely useless for a milch cow.

Three of Mr. Martin's hogs were killed in the fields and he supposed then that they were accidentally shot by hunters. He was somewhat angered by the loss and thought it was becoming too regular to be accidental. Later he found one of his valuable sows dead in the pen. The wounds on her body showed that she had been shot. When he found the hog dead in the pen, he decided that could not be an accident. That discovery led him to believe that possibly the other losses which he had suffered from gun shots were not accidental. He proceeded to "post" his farm full of notices and will not even allow a hunter to look at his farm when he passes. He will prosecute them to the extent of the law if he catches one violating his orders.

AGED WOMAN DIED THIS MORNING

Mrs. Mary Kannouse, 88 Years Old, Passed Away Very Suddenly at Home of Grandson.

HAD BEEN IN GOOD HEALTH

Mrs. Mary Kannouse died very suddenly this morning about four o'clock at the home of her grandson, Don Shellhorne, living a few miles southwest of Milroy. Mrs. Kannouse was 88 years old. This morning she was taken with a severe pain in her left side which gradually went to her heart. She had been in exceptionally good health and her death was entirely unexpected. Mrs. Kannouse was the oldest woman in that section of the county. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

HAVE OPENED SOUTH ROAD

Merchants Will Not Go Before Commissioners Monday.

It will probably not be necessary for the Merchants Association to take the question of opening the south road before the county commissioners at their regular session Monday and ask that it be opened. The road is now open as the cold weather has delayed the work so that it can not be pushed farther. The rural route carriers are making their daily trips on this road.

PARALYSIS CAUSES AGED MAN'S DEATH

John J. Nesbit, Father of Mrs. Sam Cowan, Living Near Here, Passed Away This Morning.

BURIAL MONDAY AFTERNOON

John J. Nesbit, father of Mrs. Sam Cowan, living near the city, died this morning at five o'clock at his home in Greensburg. Mr. Nesbit suffered a stroke of paralysis on election day and a second stroke the day after Thanksgiving. Since that time he had been unconscious most of the time.

Mr. Nesbit would have been sixty-nine years old the first day of January. Besides Mrs. Cowan, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ora Hite of near Clarksburg, and Miss Mattie Nesbit of Indianapolis, and one son, Charles Nesbit of Anderson. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of J. J. Talbott in Greensburg.

AMERICAN ROAD CONGRESS TO MEET

Important Session Will be Held Next Week in Indianapolis—Wide Interest Being Shown.

IS A NATIONAL MOVEMENT.

One of the greatest good roads meetings ever held in America, will be the meeting of the American Good Road Congress, which will meet in Indianapolis next week, beginning Tuesday. Those who will participate in the program are without exception men recognized nationally as leaders in the movement to provide better highways throughout the country.

That a wide interest is being taken in the Congress is evinced by the fact that delegates are to be sent to Indianapolis from almost every State in the union and from Alaska and Canada.

The last day of the Congress, Friday, December 9th, will be "Indiana Day," and the sessions will be held in Tomlinson Hall, as it is expected that several thousand additional delegates from Indiana will be present that day.

Those who speak on Friday are L. Ert Slack, Franklin, Ind.; Marcus R. Sulzorn, Madison, Ind.; Lorenzo D. Hall, Elkhart, Ind.; Chas. A. Bookwalter, Indianapolis; S. Percy Hooker, Chairman of the New York State Highway Commission; James H. McDonald, State Highway Commissioner of Connecticut and Harold Parker, Chairman of Massachusetts State Highway Commission.

A school for chefs is the latest scheme of the London county council.

EARLY SHOPPING BEE IS BUZZING

Rushville Merchants Say More People are Purchasing Gifts Ahead of Time Than Ever Before.

AGITATION HAS ITS EFFECTS

Local Toy Stores Present Array of Unique and Novel Inventions to Delight Children.

Notwithstanding Christmas is twenty-one days away, there are evidences of its approach on every hand. In almost every window in the downtown stores holiday goods are being displayed always with an eye to catch the Christmas shopper. Holiday shoppers are putting in their appearance, especially in the afternoons, when the streets have on a more active crowd than usual. Early shopping is coming to be an epidemic much to the joy of Rushville business men who, together with their clerks, are generally worn out with the rush a few days before Christmas. Stores where an attempt is made to lure the little ones, are making big displays of their stock of toys and novel articles that are the delight of the kids.

The early shopping idea has gained such headway in the last few years, that merchants who have been here for many years and have watched the holiday seasons come and go, are inclined to believe that thousands more people are buying earlier now than ever before. Notwithstanding all of the agitation that has been started by newspapers concerning the "buy-early" slogan, there are a few still extant who will persist in waiting until Christmas even when all of the stores' choicest stock has been selected and the clerks are worn out, nigh unto distraction. But the shop-early idea has gained much headway in the last few years, as local business men will confess.

A visit to one of the toy stores of the city will not only delight the youngster and cause his or her eyes to grow large with wonder, but will possibly interest the grown-ups. The ingenious and unique inventions that are put into tangible form to ensnare the old uncle or grandpap who would buy a Christmas present for his pet child of the family, are truly marvelous. It is with wonder that the shopper will glance over the array of playthings in which men have invested millions just to suit the whims of the pampered children of the country—meaning no class, for they are all pampered.

Airships of all designs and varying degrees of "horse power" have found their way to Rushville in startling array. From the Curtis airship and Wright biplanes to the Zeppelin dirigibles, the local market is at present glutted with the craft. And some of them really fly. It makes little difference to the prospective owners if the machines are smaller than the models, just so they fly.

Other odd and novel toys which are to be had by the local trade are electric trains, containing tiny motors; the "Teddy Bear" muff; the "American navy" toy; the Fairy Zoo doll; the radiophone and many other innovations too numerous to mention. It costs nothing to see all of them.

USE PEN AND INK.

Persons who have occasions to draw up contracts, notes, checks, etc., should always use a pen and ink, never a lead pencil, unless it is of the indelible sort. The law recognizes the lead pencil, but its lines are easily erased and terms may be changed without leaving a trace. No good business man will ever fill out and sign a check or other blank with a pencil.

JURORS WEPT WHEN WOMAN TOLD STORY

Mrs. Menlo Moore Creates Sensation in Court.

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 3.—On the witness stand in the trial of her husband for the murder of Charles E. Gibson, millionaire oil operator, Mrs. Menlo Moore sobbed out the story that she said she told her husband, which caused her husband to kill Gibson. She told how she first met Gibson. She asserted he induced her to accompany him to a barn on pretense of trapping her husband with another woman.

"When I entered the barn," she testified, "and turned to see why there was no light there, Gibson having assured me there would be a light, he grabbed me around the waist with his left arm and held me tight, and as I struggled to free myself he threw his right hand to my throat and as I struggled he pressed harder until I was so weak that my eyes seemed to bulge from my head and I could not get my breath, and I was so weak I could not resist him any longer.

"That was all I told my husband then. I was afraid to go on with the story on account of the terrible effect it was having on him. He got up and paced the floor and ran his hands through his hair and said, 'My God, my God, my little girl!' He became so frantic I telephoned father and asked him to bring mother immediately. He came with my mother and my husband was quieted."

When asked why she had not told her husband all, the witness declared she was afraid of a nervous breakdown, as he was then under the care of a specialist. The jurors sat as if spell-bound, and tears rolled down the cheeks of several of them. Arnold J. Padgett, the father of Mrs. Moore, cried as a child. The prisoner collapsed, buried his face in his arms and for almost an hour never raised his head.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup, bringing dread to the household. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. It contains no opiates.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of its souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

HOOSIERS HAD A GREAT TIME

Heard All About What Fine Folks They Are.

RIGHT THERE AT THE WALDORF

That Annual Dinner of the Indiana Society of New York Was Marked by a General Review of the Glories of the Old Home and of the Greatness of Her Men and the Beauty and Grace of Her Women.

New York, Dec. 3.—Tom Marshall, the governor of the state that is the home of an obsolete anti-cigarette law, sat at the guest table at the annual dinner of the Indiana Society last night at the Waldorf, smoking a coffin nail. Somebody said that the chief reason for the governor's visit to New York was to light a cork tip and get away with it. Despite the enforced absence of George Ade and Lew Shank, the Indiana Society turned out about 225 strong to listen to a lot of speeches about themselves and then take turns in making them. While they were working up to oratory, the orchestra played the walters in and out of the grand ballroom where the banquet was held, to the strains of "On the Banks of the Wabash Far Away." Tunes like the "Suwanee River" and "Old Kentucky Home" were received with polite attention, but when it was time again for "The Wabash," ah, then came back mental visions of pussy willows aslant the brook and Booth Tarkington and Democratic majorities, and homey things like that.

Captain James B. Curtis, the president of the society, marshaled the literary lights and other Hoosier geniuses in turn and told them when it was time for them to get up and tell how great is Indiana and everything connected with it. Governor Marshall sat at the toastmaster's left as the guest of honor. Seated also at the speakers' table were Meredith Nicholson, Horace Hord, President Scott Bone of the Gridiron club, Washington, ex-Congressman Pence, President Parsons of the Indiana Normal school, President U. N. Bethell of the New York Telephone company, William DeMattos Hooper, and Joseph T. Fanning.

Congressman Sulzer was at one of the tables as a guest. Also among the 225 were Captain Jack Thompson of Indianapolis and Broadway; Carroll C. Rawlings and three generations of Rawlingses, all born in Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Griswold Bourne; Captain F. Y. Hedley, and Dr. and Mrs. O'Donald.

Governor Marshall had it made plain to him that the greatest state in the Union is his own state, and the Hoosiers the greatest of our citizens, and Governor Marshall the greatest of Hoosiers. The governor told the diners about "The Hoosiers" also. If any of the speakers who had preceded him forgot anything of importance that should be recalled concerning Indiana the governor remembered and sprung it pleasantly.

Meredith Nicholson said he had come in the interest of 5,000 novelists from Indiana who want to protest that the Hoosier farmer and his wife and daughters have so far forgotten their former work of supplying Hoosier authors with blue jeans and sunbonnet local color that now it is troublesome to find any of the old stuff to write about in the home state. The hobble skirt already has reached Logansport. According to Mr. Nicholson one of the big products of the state now is former statesmen. Lafe Pence did not seem to feel offended.

Scott Bone spoke of "a Hoosier from Washington"; President Parsons talked on "Educational Indiana"; Mr. Bethell on the subject of "Where Lincoln Spent His Boyhood"; ex-Congressman Pence on "Virginia at Indiana Centennial in 1916."

John H. Nolan who sings for the Gridironers in Washington, sang for the Hoosiers whenever the band quit "The Wabash" long enough to permit of a song being sung. And there was time always to work in from various parts of the hall the thrilling yells of Indiana University, Purdue, Wabash and all the other Indianan seats of great learning that pave the state from the river north to the lake.

REMARKABLE ESCAPE

Two Men Fall Six Hundred Feet and Are Uninjured.

Paris, Dec. 3.—Two men fell 600 feet in an aeroplane and escaped serious injury. Lorian, the aviator, with M. Fay as a passenger, was just beginning a flight to Brussels and return when the accident occurred. The aeroplane was circling over the aviation field at Issy when the engine stopped and the machine plunged to the earth. While the aeroplane splintered to pieces the two men rose out of the wreckage practically uninjured.

Post Has a Bad Fall.

New Orleans, Dec. 3.—Augustus Post, one of the aviators in the meet here, was seriously injured when his machine was caught in a heavy gust of wind and swept to earth sixty feet below. He sustained bruises about the face and body and was knocked unconscious. He is under the care of a doctor.

DIAZ CONTROLS WITH FIRM HAND

The Jails of Mexico Overcrowded With Rebels.

ARE THOROUGHLY WHIPPED

Miscarriage of the Plans of the Revolutionary Leaders Threw the Whole Movement Into Confusion and Placed the Leaders and Active Participants at the Mercy of Strong Government.

City of Mexico, Dec. 3.—The leaders and plotters of the revolutionary movement are being rapidly rounded up. In many towns the jails are overcrowded with the political prisoners. One of the most important captures is Jan B. Vaca, who is alleged to have laid the plans for the attacks on Parral and other places in that region. Vaca has been placed in prison here. He is said to have been one of Madero's right-hand men, and to have laid plans for attacks on towns all over the republic, but in person supervised the planning of the raid on Parral.

After the plans miscarried the rebels were thoroughly whipped. Vaca fled southward through Durango up to the capital of the state of Jalisco, where he was captured by secret service men.

Rafael Quiroz Cardenas, another important suspect, and J. Socorro Cervantes, a scarcely less valuable capture, have arrived under guard from Jiquilpan, Michoacan.

Cardenas is said to have been the leading anti-revolutionist of the Michoacan town, and to have been tireless in his machinations against the existing government. He is alleged to have formulated plots and to have been on the point of carrying them out with the aid of a number of other malcontents when arrested. The attack on Jiquilpan apparently was frustrated by the capture of this man and of his companion and second, Cervantes.

Cervantes himself is charged with being no small figure among the Madero supporters and plotters against Mexico. His work extended beyond piper, according to the charges, and he was actually involved in some of the rioting which has marked the past three weeks in various towns of the republic. Rurales in conflict with four men and a boy whom they surprised cutting telegraph wires in Colonia Adana, near Atzacotalco, killed the boy and forced the four men to fly.

El Paladin, an anti-revolutionist organ, currently reported to have been financed by Madero and his supporters, has been closed by order of the court. Ramon Alverz Soto, editor and proprietor of the paper, has been held under charges of fomenting trouble through his newspaper. The offices of El Paladin were searched by the authorities and a number of copies containing articles calculated to inflame the more ignorant classes of the people against the government have been confiscated.

Two bandits were shot dead in a fierce hand-to-hand battle with the employees of the Hacienda Santa Rosa, near Puebla. The mounted bandits, heavily armed, attacked the hacienda about midnight and the manager of the ranch immediately armed his employees and led them in the defense. So effective was their fire that the bandits were forced to flee, leaving two of their number dead.

IMPOSING FUNERAL

Was Given the Late President of the Chilean Republic.

Berlin, Dec. 3.—The Kaiser arranged a remarkably impressive funeral yesterday for Pedro Montt, the late president of Chile, who died here last August. The body had been lying in a vault in St. Hedwig's Catholic church since the death of the former president, awaiting the arrival of the Chilean warship Blanca Encalada. The body was conveyed from St. Hedwig's church to the railway station with an imposing escort of 5,000 troops. The massed bands and muffled drums played Chopin's funeral march during the entire march. The hearse was followed by a delegation of high officers of the German army and navy, the members of the Chilean legation and several hundred Chileans resident here.

The Encalada with the remains aboard sailed from Bremen today. Mr. Hill the American ambassador, and the members of the foreign diplomatic corps attended the funeral service. All the flags on the government buildings in Berlin were at half mast.

Caleb Powers Backs Howard. Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 3.—Jim Howard, who was convicted several times and pardoned by Governor Wilson as being the principal in the murder of Governor William Goebel, will make the race for the state senate and will be backed by Congressman-Elect Caleb Powers.

They Fought to the Death. Guanajuato, Mexico, Dec. 3.—Charles Monroe, an American, who came here from Oakland, Cal., a few years ago, fought a duel with Jose Sooma near the Union hotel. Both men were killed. They had been personal enemies for some time.

Faint?

Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up-stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alternative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Mr. Taft says expenses must be cut. This will chill the patriotic fire surging up in the congressional bosoms.

Mr. Roosevelt is to write the history of Texas. Digging into dusty archives will be for him about like one of his African lions playing jackstraws.

An English expedition started from New Zealand to the South pole, loaded down with brass tubes which will be deposited along the route of their lecture engagements next season.

Democratic presidential bargain hunters are trying to figure out whether Gov. Wilson's 50,000 in New Jersey was a greater mark down of Republican hopes than Gov. Harmon's 100,000 in Ohio.

Somebody who has been figuring on the problem reports that congress costs this country $14,000,000 a year. It will be useless, however, to try to get our Democratic friends to agree to the abolition of congress at this time.

Information was conveyed to the State Department at Washington by the Turkish government that Jerusalem is to be made over into a modern city. It is said that bids for the work will be asked for by the Turkish government within the next month. Jerusalem modernized will cease to be a drawing card for pilgrims.

Darius Green was outdone by a North Carolina farmer. Having read about recent airship flights, Charles W. James, a farmer of Madison county, N. C., tied eagle wings to his shoulders with stout cords and opening an umbrella which he held in his hands, leaped from a cliff fifty feet above the adjacent land. The dispatch says that his recovery from injuries sustained is somewhat doubtful.

Germany is now complaining that the combination of American packers is cutting off the South American supply of hides to that country. Probably the complaint is well-founded. There is nothing that a monopoly will not attempt. The trusts have been so built up in this country that they feel able to defy the world. Possibly the only way to control them will be through international agreements, the same as exist against piracy.

The Huntington Herald suggests that inasmuch as there are rural route patrons who have for years been at the tail end of the route—who get their mail each day along in the afternoon, it might be a good idea for rural carriers to "go their route backward" part of the time. They would be willing to be satisfied if they could have the earlier service just every other month. The suggestion seems like a practical one, though some rule of the department may not leave it to the individual carrier to make his choice in giving service.

Louis Ludlow of the Indianapolis Star, has returned to Washington and from that city has resumed his attacks upon President Taft, says the Ft. Wayne News (Republican). It was the nature of the Washington correspondence published in the paper that purported to be the State organ of the Republican party that did so much to disrupt and disorganize Indiana Republicans last winter and spring, for this correspondence most bitterly arraigned the federal administration and that, too, in a manner that was most unfair and unjust. Louis Ludlow is a partisan Democrat and first became known in Indiana journalism as the Washington correspondent of the old Indianapolis Sentinel. He is still pursuing the policy he followed then of harpooning the Republican party at every turn, and he is now enabled to make his work much more effective, as it is given out as the view of a Republican paper. It is not known just what the policy of the Star is nor what its purpose, but that it is contributing magnificently to the cause of Democracy there is not the least doubt in the world.

RETAIN SECRET FOR FORTNIGHT

Walter S. Petty, Formerly of This City is Married to Miss Iva Rogers of Wabash.

ELOPE TO BLUE GRASS STATE

Intended to Keep Wedding From the Public Until First of Next Year.

It has just become generally known that Walter S. Petty formerly a resident of this city, but now of Indianapolis, was secretly married to Miss Iva Rogers of Wabash the fifteenth of last month. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Petty, who now reside on J. Q. Thomas' farm near Wabash, but who at one time lived here. The Wabash Plain Dealer says:

"Well, how are you, Miss Rogers?" was the way W. S. Petty greeted his guest upon her arrival with his son, Walter S. Petty, at their farm home, Sunday.

"But it isn't Miss Rogers any longer," laughed the latter.

Then Mr. Petty realized that a secret had been revealed and greeted his son and bride, formerly Miss Iva Rogers, with surprised delight.

Mr. and Mrs. Petty then told their secret. November 15 they went to Indianapolis, then to Louisville and at the latter place were married.

Mr. Petty has a splendid position with the Atlas engine works at Indianapolis and Miss Rogers has been cashier for Renner Bros.

They decided to keep their secret until January 1 and at that time remove to Indianapolis and begin housekeeping. But friends became suspicious of their secret so they decided to tell their parents.

Sunday Mr. Petty and his bride told her parents Mr. and Mrs. Norval Scott Rogers and then drove to his home and told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Petty.

Mr. Petty returned to his work at Indianapolis Sunday evening and is preparing a home for their reception January 1. The bride and groom are both extremely well known in this city and have a host of friends.

Their wedding was a complete surprise to all as they had quietly slipped away, the bride apparently to visit friends, and were married. They are of two of the oldest and most respected families in the county and their friends will learn of their wedding with pleasure and surprise at the clever trick.

TRACTION STATION ROBBED

JOHN HINER HAS NEAR FIRE

Rural Mail Carrier, While in Wagon, Discovers Blaze.

John Hiner, rural mail carrier on route seven, was driving out Third street one morning this week, starting over his daily trip, when he began to feel very warm. A hole was burned through the blanket on which he was sitting and the wood had begun burning. The blaze was started from his heater.

AMUSEMENTS

The Vaudet will have a complete change of program tonight.

The Palace has for tonight a Biograph film entitled "Two Little Waifs." The picture is taken from the play of that name and is said to be very good. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Star Grand offers an Edison film tonight entitled "The Ship's Husband." In this age of divorce and matrimony, affinities and alimony, one could hardly expect that a ship would have a husband, but it is true. She has—even dear old Noah Webster says so. The ship's husband, according to Webster, is an agent who has charge of a ship in port. The point in this story is, who is the ship's husband? And had Mrs. James A. Knox known that the ship had a husband there never would have been such a complication as this delightful little comedy affords. It was played in and around the picturesque surroundings of Victoria, B. C., and fairly bubbles over with good humor and human nature. Earl Robertson will sing "The Vitagraph Girl."

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

IT'S EVER THUS.

Man that is born of his parents is of few days and full of microbes. He goeth to school when a youngster and gets the seat of his pants paddled for something he didn't do until he is sick at heart. He groweth up like a weed in a back yard and soon reaches the age when he is composed largely of feet, freckles and an appetite for pie. About the time he gets too long for short trousers and not long enough for long ones he goeth away to college, learneth how to monkey with a three dollar mandolin and play whiskey poker. He cometh home a bigger fool than ever and marieth a sweet young thing whose pa is supposed to be wealthy, but whom he subsequently ascertained couldn't buy the prize rooster at a county fair. He worrieth along from year to year, gradually acquiring offsprings until his house resembles a Sunday school class just before Christmas. He fretteth through the day and lieth awake nights trying to figure out how to keep his dependent population out of the poor house. Efforts are rewarded by his daughters running away and getting married and bringing home a nice son-in-law every few days to feast at his board. His son grows up and calls him governor and sets him back a five spot every day or two. About the time he has acquired enough lucre to make it worth while for his heirs to quarrel over he contracts a cold and is hurried away before he has time to talk with his family. His sons blow in his estate on bad whiskey and plug hats and his wife puts the finishing touches to his career by marrying the hired man.—Ex.

WAS ELECTED BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

Samuel A. Ellis is Now Chief of Police at Shirley—Formerly Deputy Sheriff.

KEEPING GOOD ORDER THERE

Samuel A. Ellis was elected marshal of Shirley this week by a unanimous vote of the people. He was nominated over three candidates the day following the shooting of James Bailey, who died at a hospital in Indianapolis.

The Shirley News has the following to say regarding his election:

"The result is gratifying to the law-abiding portion of the citizens of Shirley, as Marshal Ellis has, during the interval following Mr. Gilbreath's resignation and the election, shown himself to be a brave and efficient officer. There was some effort following the shooting of Bailey to intimidate Mr. Ellis by some of the lawless element, but he was so prompt to meet them that they deemed it best to let him alone. Since then, though a pay-day at the Bottle house has passed, matters have been very quiet among the 'booze crowd,' with no complaints or arrests. Now let us back the marshal with hearty support."

"But, Tracey—"
The boy paused at the door.

"What?"
"Remember what I told you. Don't you make too much love. Let Angie do that."

"Gosh, that'll be the hardest rule of all for me!" A shadow clouded Tracey's honest eyes. "But I got to do it that way, anyway. I can't ask her to marry me yet. I can't afford to get married."

"It's a contrary world, Tracey, a contrary world!" sighed Nat in a tone of deepest melancholy.

"What makes you say that? You kin git married 's soon 's you want to."

"You think so, Tracey?"

"All you got to do 's ask Josie!"
"I'm almost afraid you're right."

"Why? Don't you want to git married?"

"Well"—Nat smiled—"no. Don't be here I do, not just now, at any rate."

"Well, you don't have to if you don't want to. G'd night."

"Yes, I do," Nat told Tracey's back. "The rules say so. If the girl asks me I must."

He grimaced ruefully beneath his wisp of a mustache. "Anyhow, I've got a few months left."

So the winter wore away, and as spring drew nigh upon our valley Duncan seemed to grow perturbed, even as he had been in the autumn before Betty went away.

Duncan urged Sam to move his household from over the store to a house. He pointed out that a separate residence distinctly befitted the dignity of a man who was at once a prominent inventor and one of Radville's leading merchants (vide a "Personal" in the late issue of the Radville Citizen), to say nothing of the social position of his daughter—meaning Betty. And the house Duncan had his metaphorical eye upon was large enough to shelter Nat himself in addition to the Graham family.

Graham fell in with the scheme with out a murmur of dubiety or dissent. Whatever Nat proposed in Sam's understanding was right and feasible, and even if it wasn't really so Nat would make it so. They engaged the house and moved. Miss Ann Sophronisba Whitmarsh, a maiden lady of forty-five or thereabouts, popularly known as "Phony," had been coming in by the day to "do for" old Sam in the rooms above the shop. She was engaged as resident housekeeper for the new establishment and entered upon her duties with all the discreet joy of one whose maternal instincts have been suppressed throughout her life. She mothered Sam, and she mothered Nat, and she panted in expectation of the day when she would have Betty to mother.

CHAPTER XVIII.

JOSIE LOCKWOOD came home again for the Easter holidays, but she didn't return to finish her term in the New York school—just why we never discovered. The Lockwoods furnished us with no really satisfying explanation. They said that Josie didn't like New York, but I've always doubted that, especially since Josie married and insisted on moving straight away to that metropolis. I suspect she didn't get along with the class of young women with whom she was thrown at school, and I'm pretty certain she was uneasy about Nat all the time she was so far away from him.

It was during this period, between the Easter vacation and the end of the spring school term, that Roland Barnett's animosity toward Duncan became virulent.

Josie, of course, was prompt to oust Angie Tuthill from her place in the choir. After that she sang with Nat on Friday nights as well as Wednesdays and twice per Sunday. Between whiles she was a pretty constant patron of the store. There was no longer the least doubt in the collective mind of the town as to the inclination of Josie's affections.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

DANDRUEF AND ITCHING SCALP YIELD TO THIS TREATMENT.

Why experiment trying to drive the dandruff germ from underneath the skin with greasy lotions or fancy hairdressing when druggists everywhere and in Rushville the Wolcott Drug Store will guarantee ZEMO and ZEMO soap to entirely rid the scalp of the germ life that causes the trouble.

ZEMO and ZEMO soap can be obtained in any city or town in America and are recognized the best and most economical treatment for all affections of the skin or scalp whether on infant or grown person. Application of ZEMO and use of ZEMO soap will cure the most obstinate case of eczema or skin disease.

We invite you to try ZEMO and ZEMO soap and if not entirely satisfied we will refund your money.

F. E. Wolcott's Drug Store.

The culmination came the day before Betty was to return—a day late in May, I remember, and a Friday at that.

It began along toward evening. Duncan, alone in the store, was busy behind the prescription counter. Absorbed with his task, he thought himself quite alone until a well kenned voice reached his ear.

"Well!" it said, unctuous with appreciation of the sight of him. "Old Dr. Duncan!"

He let the pestle fall from his hand and jumped as if he had been stuck with a pin. His jaw dropped and his eyes bulged. "Great Scott!" he cried and in a twinkling was round the counter, throwing himself into the arms of a man whom he hailed ecstatically. "Harry, by all that's wonderful!" He fairly danced with delight. "Henry Kellogg, Esquire!" he cried.

"THOUGHT I'D DROP OFF FOR A NIGHT," holding him at arms' length and looking him over. "What in thunder are you doing here?"

"On my way to Cincinnati on business. Thought I'd drop off for a night and size you up. How are you?"

"Me? Look at me—picture of health. Harry, you've made a new man of me." Duncan pranced round his friend in a mild frenzy. "No booze, no smokes, no swears—work! I feel like a two-year-old. I could do a Marathon without turning a hair. Watch me kick up my heels and neigh! And listen!" Nat crowed. "I'm a business man. Didn't you believe it? Pipe my shop!"

Kellogg turned to obey the admonition of Duncan's gesticulations and took a long look round the store. "Gad!" said he. "I'm blown if it isn't true! It was hard to credit your letters. But it's great, old man, I congratulate you with all my heart."

"Just wait and I'll tell you all about it. But first tell me how long you're going to be here."

"Well, I plan to hang around with you a couple of days. My business in the west isn't pressing."

"Good! I wrote you about taking a new place for the Gramhams?"

"Yes, and I'm mighty keen to meet 'em. The girl here?"

"Betty? No; she's coming home tomorrow. But Graham himself is upstairs in the laboratory. Take you up in a minute, but not before I've had a good look at you."

Kellogg found himself a chair. "Well," he inquired, twinkling, "how's

JOSIE WAS UNEASY ABOUT NAT WHILE SHE WAS AWAY.

the scheme working out? Are you really living up to all the rules?"

"Every singletary one."

"You have got a strong constitution. Even prayer meetings?"

"The church thing? Honest, Harry, I own it."

"Bully for you, Nat! But how does it work? Was I right?"

"I should say you were. It's so easy it's a shame to do it. If this thing ever should get into the papers there'd be a swarm of city men lighting out for the country so thick you wouldn't be able to see the sky."

"I knew it! Trust your Uncle Harry." Kellogg waited a time for further particulars, but Duncan seemed stuck. "And you've made a strong play for the fond affections of Lockwood's daughter?"

"Certainly not!"

"Not?"

"You forget your rules." Nat grinned, whimsical. "I let her to make a play for me."

"Of course. My mistake. But how has it worked?"

"Oh, immense!" Duncan's tone, however, was wholly destitute of enthusiasm. He stuck his hands in his trousers pockets and half turned away from his friend, looking out of the window.

Kellogg smiled secretly. "You mean you've won her already? Then you're engaged?" Kellogg had understood perfectly, you see.

"No, not yet. I've got two months left—almost."

"So you have. And since she's so strong for you there's no hurry. Let her take her time."

"I only wish she would." Duncan removed one hand from the pocket the better to tug at his mustache. It's got beyond that—to the point where I have to keep dodging her."

"You don't mean it! That's splendid." Kellogg got up and slapped Nat's shoulder heartily. "But don't overdo the dodging. She might get her back up."

"Not she. She'd eat out of my hand if I'd let her. You don't understand."

"What's the matter, then? Aren't you strong for her?"

"I wish I were."

"But why? Is there another?"

"No." Nat shook his head, honestly believing he was telling the truth. "Only I don't look at things the way I did once."

"Just what do you mean by that?"

Nat, squaring himself to face Kellogg, was very serious now and troubled. "See here, Harry," he said, "do you really want me to carry out the rest of the agreement?"

"Most certainly I do. Why not?"

"Because I'm pretty well fixed here. The business is making good, and so am I. It won't be long before I can pay you back, with interest, as we agreed, without having to marry that poor girl and draw on her money to make good to you."

"You want to go back on your agreement?" demanded Kellogg, with a show of disappointment and disgust.

"Yes and no. I won't break faith with you, if you insist, but I'd give a lot if you'd let me off—let me pay back what you advanced and cry quits. When you outlined this scheme I was down and three times out, willing to take a chance at anything, no matter how contemptible. Now—well, it's different."

"Good heavens! You don't mean you'd be willing to live here?"

Nat smiled, but not mirthfully. "I don't know," he hesitated. "I'm afraid I'm beginning to like it."

"You, Nat?" Kellogg's amazement was unfeigned. "You ready to spend your life here slaving away in this measly store?"

Duncan greeted indignantly. "Hold on, now. Don't you call this a measly store. There isn't a more complete drug store in the state."

"Do you hear that?" Kellogg appealed vehemently to the universe at large. "Is it possible that this is Nat Duncan, the fellow who hated work so hard he couldn't earn a living? Gad, I believe I've arrived just in time!"

"In time for what?"

"To save you from yourself, old man. Here's the heiress you came here to cop out, ready and anxious, everything else coming your way, and—and you're more than half inclined to back out. You make me tired."

"I suppose I must. But I can't help it. I can't make you see how the thing looks to me. You know—I've written you all about everything—what this place has meant to me. Until I came here I never realized it was in me to make good at anything. But here I have, I'm doing so well that I'd actually have some self respect if I wasn't bound to play this low down trick on Josie Lockwood. I've worked and succeeded and been of some service to people who were worth it."

"Who? Sam Graham?"

"He and his daughter!"

"Oh, his daughter!"

"Now, get that foolish idea out of your head. There's nothing in it. Betty's just a simple, sweet little girl who's had a pretty hard time and never a real chance in life—until I managed to give it to her. And I'd feel pretty good about that if— Oh, there's no use talking to you!"

"No; go on. You're very entertaining." Kellogg laughed mockingly.

"Well, I have tried to keep to the terms of our understanding. I singled out this Lockwood girl and worked all the degrees—didn't say much, you know—no lovemaking—just let her catch me looking sadly at her once in awhile."

"That's the way to work it."

"Yes, that's the way," Nat assented gloomily.

Kellogg laughed with delight. "Nat," he cried, "my poor crazy friend, listen to me. This working and church going and helping old Graham is all very noble and fine, and I'm glad you've done it. This drug store is a monument to the business ability that I always knew was latent in you. To be continued."

KEEPS UP HIS OLD FOOTBALL RECORD

Capt. Humphreys Again Demonstrates Fighting Qualities.

New York, Dec. 3.—The capture of four of the outlaws who a month ago massacred some American planters at Davao golf, in Mindanao, is reported in a cable dispatch received in this city from Zamboanga, in the Philippines. Three outlaws were killed in the fight in which these were captured, one of the killed being a datto.

The capture of the outlaws, according to this cable dispatch, was made by Captain C. B. Humphreys of the Twenty-second Infantry. Captain Humphreys was a member of the West Point football team in 1896 and 1897, and has distinguished himself by his fighting qualities on several occasions. One of these was in December, 1908, when he was on a train in Colorado. With the assistance of a negro he knocked out four prize fighters, a trainer and a rubber and held at bay fifty other men.

The party had just come from a prize fight and had made remarks about some women in the car. As a result of the fight the captain was badly disfigured and disabled, both of his hands having been broken. He was in the hospital several weeks.

Frindel had been found guilty by a jury after a trial in which Bronstein and Weiss testified against him. Then Judge Landis said that he understood that the cases against the two latter were to be compromised on a cash basis. "If that is done I will turn Frindel loose too," he said. He further took occasion to criticize the action of the government in bringing Weiss and Bronstein in as witnesses, declaring that the case would have been just as strong without them.

Turning to Harry Parkin and Henry Freeman, the assistant district attorneys, Judge Landis said: "Has the government decided what is to be done in the matter of compromising this crime?"

"I have not heard," said Mr. Freeman, but I'll write."

"There are telegraph wires," suggested the court.

"But I prefer to write," said Freeman.

"Well, I'll not sentence this man until I hear from the last person regarding this compromise. If the secretary of the treasury accepts money from Weiss and Bronstein and turns them loose in consideration of getting some dirty money, I'll turn Frindel loose and they'll not get a dollar from him."

Judge Landis said that he would sentence Frindel next Tuesday, and ordered that he be kept in jail.

The Old Turnpikes.

The first great American highway, that between New York and Philadelphia, was long known as "the old York road." Its construction in 1711 was an example which led the colonists at other points along the Atlantic seaboard to construct similar roads where there were no water routes. They were usually built by chartered companies and were called turnpikes or toll roads. Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey had many roads of the kind. The first macadam road in America was built in 1792 between Philadelphia and Lancaster. In 1811 there were said to be 4,500 miles of chartered turnpikes in New England and New York. During the next twenty years the national government spent many millions of dollars in constructing great highways, but the panic of 1837 and the building of railroads and canals put an end to that branch of government work. MAKE THREATS IN TWO CASES ters. The squire said this morning that the letters were undoubtedly the work of some fanatic who believes that a truly moral person should not play pool. The squire says that the Methodist minister was in his place and declared to him that there is no harm in playing pool. He declares that there has been considerable agitation in Milroy recently by reason of the fact that two revival meetings have been in progress there.

Ben. J. Ritchey owns the other pool room in Milroy. The squire was asked if he believed his entering the field as a competitor might not have been the cause of the unsigned letters. He replied that he did not think his competitor had any part in the affair and that he is no way responsible.

It was first said here that the letters were the result of the odd Kinnett-Walters case, which has already had all due publicity. The squire does not believe that the two letters have any bearing on the late trial. He received the first one before the case was ever heard, and the second the morning of the day on which he returned the verdict. Ritchey says that the writers of the unsigned letters do not in any way refer to the recent case. He refuses to make the contents of the letters public, but says he will await Uncle Sam's action. He showed the first letter to the postmaster, S. R. Stewart, but has refused to give anyone a glance at the second one.

The squire declares that he has no idea about the identity of the anonymous letter writers. He says that Milroy people, refusing to name them, have threatened his son, Ray, a boy of fifteen years. The squire said today that a person had told his son that a farmer, William Martin, living near there, had said that he would shoot young Ritchey if he caught him on his place. The squire says that he asked Martin if he had ever made such an assertion and he denied that he had.

Several people in Milroy, including the postmaster, are inclined to believe that the opening of the pool room is not the reason for the strange missives being sent to the official. They lay the blame on the action of the squire's son, whom, they say, has been carrying a rifle about town and has been shooting it promiscuously. They declared that many people in the town have grown tired of the practice and believe that the unsigned letter-writer has used that method to warn him to control his boy better. Several hogs and one cow have been mysteriously shot in the past few weeks and Milroy people say that the community is slightly agitated over that.
